POETRY.

THE SECRET PRAYER. It was a still and solemn hour In an isle of the Southern Seas, And slowly the shades of night were swept Away by the morning breeze, When a lonely son of Britain stood With cheek and brow of care, Seeking amid the solitude

A place for secret prayer. No ear to hear in that silent glen, No eye but the eye of God; Yet the giant fern gave back a voice As forth the wanderer trod:

They were broken words that met his ear, And a name was mingled there; It was the name of Christ he heard And the voice of secret prayer. A native of that savage isle

From the depths of his full heart cried For mercy, for help, in the hour of need, For faith in the Crucified! And peace and hope were in those tones; So solemnly sweet they were, For He who answers while yet we call

Had blessed that secret prayer. The morning dawned on that lonely spot, But a far more glorious day

Came with the accents of prayer and praise
On the Indian's lips that lay.

The first, the first who had called on God

In those regions of Satan's care, The first who had breathed in his native tongue The language of secret prayer.

And he who that hallowed music heard, The missionary lone-Oh! the joy that thrilled thro' his yearning heart By a stranger may not be known. But he knelt, and blessed the hand that sent, In the hour of his deep despair, Comfort and strength to his fainting soul With the voice of that secret prayer:

For the Boston Morning Post. THE SMITHSONIAN BEQUEST.-No 2.

If history teaches us one solitary important moral truth it is this: that the productive industry of nations depends on the security of property. This principle, in its broad sense, is admitted by the most zealous advocates for strong and steady governments, and who oppose all innovation. Turkey, with its bland climate and rich soil, is a wild uncultivated desert, when compared to the ice-bound and sterile Switzerland.

The undisputed fact above, is accompanied by another revelation of history-it is the following: Here, where property is safe, (permanently,) there is less poverty, and consequently less ignorance and vice.

Now, what more is wanted of government than to produce these important results? Divine wisdom could command nothing more desirable; and yet I have called government a science, and recommended a special school for its study. Where is the mystery of government, which calls for such a study? Why it is merely in the necessity which past, selfish, fraudulent, specious, deceptive legislation has imposed upon us, to unravel the web in which it has imprisoned our minds. We have but to remove this obstruction, and the awful science of government will be found to depend on one simple honest truth-viz. Hones-TY IS THE BEST POLICY.

How much learning has been perverted, and how much labor wasted, to obscure this one important truth, before, and since, the time of Machiaveli; but never, perhaps, more artfully than by this master sophist. Yet this same supposed friend of despotism has occasionally let fall from his pen some strange remarks, which lead us almost to the conclusion, that he was the disguised friend of the people, at too early a period for the people to take a fruitful lesson from his ultra despotic doctrine.

"Religion," says Machiaveli, (meaning a corrupt religion, of course,) "which recommends, only, passive courage, and long suffering, has subdued the spirit of maned in St. John's Church, South Thirteenth street, on kind, and fitted it for slavery and subjection." We can Sunday afternoon. The church was filled in every readily admit that this may be true of every corrupt religion. It then becomes the duty of all true moralists, to enquire boldly what religions are corrupt; what forms on religion have a corrupting tendency, and what religion is entirely free from corruption. Honest scepticism has always been the the pioneer to improvement; and that alone oust prepare the reign of true philosophy. The corruption of the best things, often gives rise to the worst; and the doctrine which teaches that affliction is good and desireable, has no charms for me. It was a heathen maxim, which taught that man must be chastised into a reverence for the gods. It is unworthy of our age; and I will venture to call it one of the corruptions which some of us have borrowed from ages of superstition. Superstition rose in ages of ignorance, and preyed on imbecility; her Temple is folly; her worshippers are the weak, and her ministers are monsters; for they aim at perverting God's

And which partial prohibition, (or request to Booksellors not to offer it for sale,) has increased, ten fold, its circulation among the Students.

When science finds matters of revelation and faith in its way, it does not always stop, but proceeds on by some devious course, and by obscure phraseology, well understood by the initiated, but leading in its turn, the less penetrating or learned, to infinite errors, or endless and discouraging perplexity. EDOSTON FRORNENG POST. | rule of the few had caused all this misery. He could easily trace the cause to its effect, in his own country. He had seen a similar cause carried out in France to its utmost bearing and final catastrophe. He saw wealth accumulated in enormous masses—he saw luxury carried to its highest pitch—and all the mental and physical energies of the great mass of the people administering to this luxury, which rose in refinement, in the same proportion that the comforts and necessaries of the people diminished.

Comforts and necessaries of the people diminished.

He heard from the infamous panders to this systematic iniquity, that the arts and sciences could never flourish without this great accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. Hence all the admirers of the arts and sciences, all the devotees of learning, in all its branches, believed, or affected to believe that knowledge itself depended in or affected to believe, that knowledge itself depended upon the extreme inequality in society, without stopping to inquire about the means whereby this inequality was to be produced, when God had made so little difference in the nental and physical capabilities of all his creatures. Yet Smithson must have doubted of the efficacy of this old European system for the promotion of knowledge; or he must have had very different notions of knowledge from the rulers of Europe.

Smithson's bequest, then, will not be applied to the purpose for which he intended it; unless some kind of knowledge be elicited by it, which will not tend to accumulate all the good things of this world into great masses, and for the special benefit of the few. And what is this knowledge, again? It is something plain, simple, and to be infused among the people, whereby they shall be able to know, how, for what purpose, in what proportion, and to what end energy cent is taken from them; either and to what end, every cent is taken from them; either directly or indirectly-whereby they shall know that every act of unequal legislation, however specious it may seem, is contrary to the interest of the many, and especially contrary to the interest of all those who labor, or live in the country—and favorable to the cities only, and the few even

> For the Boston Morning Post. INSOLVENT LAW.

Mr Editor-A writer in your paper of Saturday, under the signature of "Democrats," complains that the new law of assignments is all on one side, i. e. the creditor-and among other objections, says, poor debtors are not freed from incumbrance, should any creditor be disposed to withhold his assent to the assignment.

Another, and very glaring imperfection of the new law, is the process of attachment remaining the same as heretofore, thereby making it clearly for the interest of the creditor to secure himself by attachment, whenever he feels the least cause of suspicion of the solven-cy of his debtor, well knowing that should he delay until an assignment is made, that he would share equally with other creditors.

A moment's glance at the law will abundantly satisfy any one of the truth of my position, and that so far from benefitting the debtor, he is more than ever liable to be broken up in business.

I conceive two very important amendments may be made to this law which will go far to secure the debtor and will I think do no injustice to creditors, viz:-That all attachments hereafter made, shall be for the equal benefit of every creditor, and further, that on satisfactory evidence adduced by the debtor, that he has given up all his property (not exempted by law, from attachment) he shall be immediately and entirely released from all claims of any creditor whatever. Let those who are disposed to consult the interests of the debtor as well as the creditor, consider this subject as seriously as its importance demands, and previous to the sitting of the next Legislature, procure as many names as possible to petitions embracing the amendments I have suggested, to be presented early in the Domestic Exchanges .- We well recollect, that a little more than a year ago, it was predicted by the opponents of the United States Bank, that exchanges would be as low or lower after that institution ceased to exist, than they had ever been at the most favorable periods. This opinion was deprecated by all who were acquainted with the state of the currency in 1814, and anterior to that. The voice of experience was, however, disregarded, and the clamor and cry of down with the Bank prevailed. Now the government are not only out of debt, but have a surplus, it is believed, of nearly fifty millions; and what is the result-bills on Mobile, New Orleans, and in fact, all the South and West, payable in four months, can be purchased in any amounts at 6 and 7 per cent. discount, and at Mobile and New Orleans, similar drafts can be purchased on the Atlantic cities at 4 and 5 per cent. discount. A year ago these drafts could be sold at 1 per cent. and interest; this difference in the mercantile operations of our city and the country is immense. - N. Y. Daily Adv.

This is a mere trifle to what exchange has been, in this city, for the past year. It appeared, in evidence, before the Legislative Bank Committee, that exchange on Salem was twenty per cent. discount,-between Roxbury and Boston about five-between the two ends of Warren Bridge, two-and that one per cent. was often taken between two des's in the same Bank !--Seriously, though, every man of sense will see that these rates of exchange are but extra interest charged on loaning money. These same Banks will collect and remit money on these places as cheaply as ever. The rate of interest is increased in consequence of the excessive use of the credit system, and to remedy this evil, the sapient Bank men now propose still to increase credit by means of new Banks-they would take the hair of the same dog to cure the bite.

We were much gratified with Dr JACKSON'S lecture on Geology at the Odeon on Thursday evening. He gives a second, on the same subject, at the same place, this evening, to which we invite all the lovers of science and learning, and particularly the young, to repair. What can more interest us than to learn the structure of the globe on which we dwell, and to study the great physical changes which it has undergone.

Suicide.-A young woman by the name of Elizabeth Brrgg, who resided in Ann street, committed suicide on Monday last, by taking two ounces of corrosive sublimate.

Mysterious-Information Wanted .- From the Catskill Messenger of April 21st, we learn that a box containing the remains of a human being, were recently found in the Shinglekill Creek, near the village of Cairo. The body, which was much decayed, had been severed in the middle, and its head, hands and feet cut off, as also the legs and arms. It appears that on the 30th of September last, Mr Samuel Everett, keeper of the toll-gate on the Susquehannah the gate in the morning a one horse wagon, and horse thereto harnessed. No owner appearing, and after put him up, supposing, to be sure, that an owner would sooner or later appear and claim his property. This not under the Oriental Bank.

Mrs Lewis's Richard .- Mrs Lewis's personation of the "crook'd back tyrant" was received by a good audience with unstinted applause. Although laboring under many embarrassments and disadvantages, she sustained herself with spirit to the end. Her readings were, with few exceptions, remarkably good-her gestures graceful and appropriate-and her general conception of the character, creditable to her taste and judgment. Many very fine points were made, and some of the best scenes were rendered with great effect. Her principal faults were of a nature easy to be overcome; and a large portion of them might be justly attributed to the embarrassment which would naturally attend a first appearance, in such a character, before a Boston audience-proverbial, the world over, for the severity of its judgments, and the strictness with which it scrutinizes histrionic talent and pretensions. Under these circumstances, it is high praise to say that Mrs Lewis made a decided hit, and more than equalled the expectations of the audience. A repetition of the piece could not fail to draw a full house, as we are satisfied that many persons absented themselves under the erroneous impression that she was incompetent to perform the part, and that she was cast for it with the expectation that the novelty, rather than the merit, of the performance, would secure a numerous audience. We hope to see her, hereafter, not only in Richard, but also in Othello, Shylock, Wm. Tell, &c. &c.

We are sorry to see the N. Y. Mirror lend itself as a promulgator of Southey's hate to Lord Byron-the living Ass may kick the dead Lion, but while the noble Lord breathed, the Laureat trembled ever at his shadow. It is not Southey's regard for morality which moved him to write what the Mirror has quoted, but a desire for revenge; a desire as unchristian as any thing he can find in Don Juan. The intimation that Ellen Jewett, a girl who commenced her degraded manner of life while a child, and was an inhabitant of a brothel before she ever heard of such a being as Byron-had her mind perverted by the poetry of Byron, would disgrace the pages of Maria Monk.

Tremont Theatre .- The pretty, graceful, accomplished, and popular Miss McBride has a benefit to-night-every body knows her merits-every body admires her danchig-and every body (who can get a seat) should patronise her to-night. This is our opinion-we ask nothing for it-but we hope it will be popular.

last year. Latest from Texas .- By an arrival at New Orleans. on the 7th inst. intelligence from the immediate seat of war in Texas has been received, to the 20th of March. The captain of the vessel states, that Col. Fanning had blown up the fort at Goliad, or La Bahia, demolished the town, fought his way with five hundred men through the investing army of the Mexicans, and effected a junction with the main army of the Texans under Gen. Houston. [Another account says that he had not succeeded in effecting this junction, but had been driven back upon Goliad by the Mexicans.] An engagement was daily expected between the two main armies, on the east bank of the Colorado, the Mexicans being five thousand strong; and the Texans, according to one account, two thousand five hundred, to another, five thousand, and to a third no less than twelve thousand. A skirmish is said to have taken place between the Texans and the advance guard of the Mexican army (on the 29th of March) in which the latter were repulsed with some loss of killed and prisoners.

Previous to the blowing up of the fort at Goliad (on the 23d of March) the Georgia volunteers, 150 in number, under Col. Ward, attacked, it is said, a body of 600 Mexicans at the mission of Refugio, and routed them, having first put 250 of their number hers du combat, without the loss of a single man on their own part! We give this as reported, not believing it very firmly. Another account says that these Georgia volunteers, on their return to Goliad, were attacked by a reinforcement of Mexicans, and put to flight .- N. Y

The whole population of Texas was in the field, burning with a desire to meet the enemy, and revenge the slaughter of defenceless women and children."

Attempted Massacre at Port O'Dennis, Island of Bourbon .- On the morning of the 25th December, several negroes applied to the Governor for protection, and stated that they had important disclosures to make relative to the safety of the whole garrison. They then informed him that the plan was first to destroy the soldiery by infusing poison in the bread, and while they were dying, to attack and destroy the whole white population. On analyzing the dough then preparing, a quantity of arsenic was found in it sufficient to have destroyed any person who partook of it. The informers were put in custody, and 33 of the ringleaders were instantly arrested, and will no doubt be executed. The garrison consisted of 4000 men, and the white population must have fallen an easy prey, had they been destroyed. - Hudson's Cor.

But to return to Mrs Palmer :- it was manifest that she ould not be saved by any ordinary legal ingenuity or so phistry-the case lay in too narrow a compass for a su cessful wielding of such weapons; and if saved at all, it entirely from the case, and concentrating them on the unhappy woman; and hence he boldly asked the jury to strip them to look at an unfortunate, but not unhandsome wo-man in great distress in the culprit's dock, and forget how she came there. The skilful advocate made but little use of his minutes of the evidence, in his argument, but carefully surveyed the heads of the jurors-changing from time to time his position to reconnoitre their various "develope-ments," as the imaginary bumps are called. Catching the eye of a juror, with a fine, fat bump of " benevolence," he would ask him if he could be so unfeeling as to punish an ignorant and innocent female, because a designing knave had made her unwittingly an instrument of his crime, and then escaped, leaving her to stand the legal consequences of his guilt? To evade any guilty inference from her lies, he singled out a juror with small "combativeness," and, therefore, phrenologically, of an imbecile and nervous tem-perament,—and asked him if it was at all remarkable, or

The brig Gertrude, Foster, of Bostein, from the Coast of Africa, with palm oil, gum copal, ivory and hides, went ashore at Wellfleet on Wednesday night last in the fog. Most of the cargo had been got out upon the beach at noon to-day; the vessel but little injured, except that her mainmast was carried away, when she first struck. The captain had hopes that she would go off at high water to-day, but it is thought doubtful.

A large schooner, or a brig, was on shore on the West side of Block Island, R.I. on Friday morning. On account of the violence of the wind the Revenue Cutter was unable to go out of Newport to her assistance, but would as soon as the wind

PEOPLES' ADVOCATE.

The Advoca e, to be edited by Mr John M. Clemons, will endeavor to sustain the principles laid down in a Report of a Committee of the last Legislature appointed to inquire into the expediency of devising some more equal and safe circulating medium than that supplied by the present Banking System. Believing that System to be highly injurious to the substantial interests of the people of Maine,—that all legislation can only palliate, not reform a radical evil,—that a reform in the circulating medium of the State is loudly called for, the columns of the Advocate will contain such facts and arguments, in relation to the comparative merits of the present Banks,, and the proposed State Bank, as, it is hoped, will lead to a conclusion, which will essentially promote the welfare-

In regard to general politics, the Advocate will support the present Administration, but in that temperate manner, and with strictr gard to the great Democratic principle,—" the greatest good to the greatest number," which, it is believed, will best preserve the purity of our republican institutions.

Such selections will be made, as will interest the Farmer, the Mechanic, and other general readers. A correct Shipping List will secure to the Mariner, and Merchanic, and other general readers. List will secure to the Mariner and Merchant all necessary information on that subject. It will be the great of ject of the Advocate to aid the real interests of the whole people; and in doing that the subscriber believes that the proper office of public paper will be performed.

The paper will be published weekly, on a handsome royal

RECOMMENDATIONS.

Having been made acquainted with the medical qualities and witnessed the effects of "Dr Phelps' Arcanum," I feel much confidence in saying it is a preparation of medicine greatly superior to any thing of the kind, in curing those chronic discusses for which it is intended, and recommend it to invalids in preference to any other article whatever. samuel L. Mitchell, M. b.

SAMUEL L. MITCHELL, M. D.

New York, March 25, 1830.

My knowledge of the properties and operation of the "Arcanum of Dr Pholos," justify me in saying that it is far superior to any depurative syrup with which I am acquainted. In the most obstinate and ambiguous deseases, it displays effects peculiarly surprising. In those affections that resist the skill of the physician, such as Rheumatism, Syphilis, Scrofula, Ulcerations, and Diseases of the Skin, &c., I would recommend it as worthy of g eat confidence.

Philadelphia, Nov. 27, 1829.

Philadelphia. Nov. 27, 1829.

For the last few years I have suffered excessively by a Billious Mercuriel Disease, which has rendered me frequently unfit for duty, and confined me as often to my berth. My diease was the sequels of bad treatment, while in the more tropical latitudes, and laboring under an acute inflamation of the liner, and other Billiary organs. Prior and pubsequently to our arrival in this port, I have had recourse to a great variety of prescriptions, medicines and nostrums—among which, were a number of bottles of Swaim's Panacea, Potter's Cathalicon, the Rob of Laffecteur, &c., but without any benefit.—Dr Phelps being at that time a student of medicine in the University of Pennsylvania, advised me to make use of a newly discovered medicine, the Arcanum, which he believed would succeed in relieving me, in consequence of the very signal effects bimself and others had observed in its operation in various glandular diseases, that were otherwise considered incurable. feets himself and others had observed in its operation in various glandular discusses, that were otherwise considered incurable. I commenced its use accordingly, and it affords me pleasure to state, that for several months past, not a vestige of the original or secondary disease has been discoverable. I prize the medicine above all others with which I have ever been acquainted. It is both pleasant and I believe certain it its effects, as a remedy in a variety of chronic diseases, incident to tropical and other climates.

J. ANDREWS, Purser of the Columbian Brig Pinchines.

SAVANNAH, 6th March, 1831. GENT.—I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude to you in offering me a bottle of Dr Phelps' Arganum, as an experiin offering me a bottle of or Pheles' Arcanem, as an experiment in my case of Rheumatism. I have been dreadfully afficted for upwards of twelve months and for the last four of five months have scarcely been able to walk. I have used a dozen bottles of Swaim's Panacea, and found very little benefit from it. After taking the bottle of Arcanum. I found such a change in my whole system, that I was induced to try another, and to my surprise, the pains in mylegs all disappeared, and the Ulcers in one have completed healed up, and I can walk nearly as well as ever. I shall continue to take two bottles more, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my discuss.

I remain, gentlemen, yours very respectfully,

JNO. MORRALL. JNO. MORRALL.

Messrs Lay & Hendrickson, Druggists Savannah, (Geo.)
Extract of a letter from Dr Jones, a highly respectable physician, dated Baton Rogue, Louisiana, Dec. 28, 1833.—
The Arcanum bad two powerful competitors, Swaim's Panacea, and Putter's Carbolicon, which have been for years in circulation in this place. As far as I have had an opportunity of ascerlaining its virtues, I believe the Arcanum to be superior to any article of the kind, yet offered to the public. I prescribed it in a case of Irritable Ulcer of three years standing, situated on the Malleolus Extrenus—the individual thus afflicted was much emaciated and debilitated,—after one week's attendance, I put him upon the Arcanum, following the directions three bottles nearly effected a cure of the ulcer and bodily health.

Ily health.

I prescribed it in several Mercurial and Syphilitic Affections, where it proved salutary. I am at this time trying the Arcanum on an individual, who has been laboring under Ulcerous affections of one of his legs, for fifteen years,—he has taken I bottle only, and it has produced that effect, he is sanguine in the belief, it will effect a permanent cure.
